

Donna has been a resident of Wickenburg, Arizona since 2008 when she began to rekindle her interest in the visual arts. She graduated from Cal State Fullerton with a B.A. in Art – Photography in 1978. However, family life and a career in the corporate world put the pursuit of art on hold for three decades.

Her recent photographic work concentrates on images from nearby deserts and other southwestern locale. Though enamored of the large vistas, she tends to target in on the beauty found in specific items of desert material - natural or man-made.

Coupled with her photography, Donna has been creating acrylic paintings for the last few years. She reaches out to her viewer through her paintings to evoke an emotional response by the use of color and composition. Her personal goal is to further learn and understand the light and color of the beautiful Arizona geography.
